PRONUNCIATION AID

June Webster, descendant of the famous lexicographer, Noah Webster, presents a copy of her ancestor's work to the Publicity Department of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition Association to help them in pronouncing properly the name of the big events which opens June 1 to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. There are many types of pronunciations heard but there is just one proper way Noah says. It is "Ses-kuh-sen-ten-nial" with the accent on the first syllable of the "Sesqui" and on the second syllable of the "centennial."

Former President Pilsudski, who marched into Warsaw at the head of a small army for the announced purpose of bringing about the overthrow of the cabinet, now appears to be in complete control of the capital.

This is admitted by the Berlin bureau of the official Polish Telegram agency which announces the Belvedere palace, the last stronghold of President Wojciechowski and his ministers, is in Pilsudski's hands, and that the president and the members of the government have fled by airplanes and automobiles to an unknown destination.

Apart from this, little definite information is at hand, for reports reaching the European capitals concur that Warsaw is shut off from the rest of the world. One report received in Berlin, is that Pilsudski has tied up the railway service for a radius of 60 miles about Warsaw.

Altho the details are lacking concerning the actual state of the Polish capital, there seems no doubt that all is chaos, and that there has been some severe fighting.

By way of Prague, the news is received that encounters between the Pilsudski forces and the troops remaining loyal to the president and cabinet continued thruout Friday until 8 o'clock Friday night.

Another source, which describes the fighting as particularly fierce, estimates that 200 were killed and about 1000 wounded.

Marshal Pilsudski may soon have to pit his forces against government troops led by Generals Sikorski and Haller, who are said to be converging on the capital for the purpose of engaging the insurrections.

That the former president has succeeded in adding to his followers is indicated in a message received in Prague that he is being supported by the Social-Democratic, Peoples and radical parties and one newspaper in Prague.

The spectacle of the president of the Polish republic and his legally constituted cabinet leaving Warsaw by airplane for Peson to continue the fight against Marshal Pilsudski, while fighting is going on at the gates of Warsaw between the forces of Pilsudski and those of the government under General Halley, is offered by sketchy and conflicting dispatches from Prague, Vienna, Berlin and Polish frontier points.

The fighting was particularly fierce and it is estimated that 200 were killed and about 1000 wounded.

Private advices reaching Berlin are that Pilsudski has issued a proclamation setting forth that the insurrection is not directed against President Wojciechowski, but simply against the

LARGEST HAY DEALERS ARE BALES & SON

Handle Train Load a Day—
A. P. Stout in Wisconsin
Buying For Firm.

We don't know how much baled hay Marshfield and vicinity has shipped out this winter, but it is certain that it has been an enormous amount, estimated roughly at several thousand cars. There is more to ship but the peak has been passed and from now on buyers will have to use a fine tooth comb to make a big showing.

A. P. Stout, representing J. F. Bales & Son, of Circleville, Ohio, has been in this section the past three weeks and expects to pick up 200 carloads before he leaves. He has been shipping out of Startford, Fenwood, Junction City and Wausau and now is cleaning up the territory out of Marshfield, dealing thru Brickheimer & Thorn and Sehafer & Son.

Bales & Son are the largest dealers in hay in the world and according to Mr. Stout, who is in charge of their sales department in the southern states, they handle a train-load of hay a day—approximately 5,000 cars or 75,000 tons a year. Most of their hay which is purchased in Wisconsin, Ohio, Vermont, Pennsylvania, the Carolinas, Florida and Georgia.—Marshfield, Wisconsin, Herald.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION OF DELEGATES

American Legion of Ohio
May Win Honor and Prestige at Celebration.

Ohio Department of The American Legion may win national honors and prestige for this state by leading the Legion's national convention parade to be held in Philadelphia in October during the Sesqui-Centennial celebration there, according to information received in Columbus from national headquarters.

The position in the parade of national convention delegates from this department, their place in the convention hall and the class of hotel accommodations they receive will be determined by the Legion membership in the department on June 15, as compared with the average membership of the department for the past four years, according to the word from headquarters.

This department with 744 per cent of its four year's average membership enrolled on May 5, has a "splendid opportunity to increase its membership by June 5, sufficiently to win the honor of leading the nation in the Philadelphia parade," department officials of the Legion here declared.

The Legion's annual national convention parade, which was reviewed in Omaha last year by President Coolidge, has been described as the "most colorful and impressive parade in America." It will be witnessed this year by the vast throngs attending the Sesqui-Centennial celebration to commemorate the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

National Commander John R. McQuigg in a membership message to department officials expressed the opinion that this department will be up among the leaders when the great Legion parade gets under way at Philadelphia. His message read:

"You will be glad to know definitely that our national membership is such that we are assured of a very considerable increase for 1926. The next important membership contest close on June 15 and is to determine the position of department delegates in the parade at Philadelphia. This race for convention honors promises to be very hotly contested. A number of departments are running neck and neck and every department seems to be determined to get the best possible position. I feel sure that your department will make an excellent showing."

A Judgment in Equity

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"I WOULDN'T!" Lillian protested sourly, trying hard to turn up a nose already sufficiently snub. "Old wet blanket! Go hang yourself to dry," her cousin, Lee Barton, flung back at her, tossing her head. She held cards elaborately engraved, in her left hand—the right was busy apparently with arithmetic—its fingers made motions of counting. "The Lord is good to me," she ejaculated joyously. "Two weeks till the party—my check is sure to be here days ahead of it. So I'm going right straight for—the frock of my desire. Lots of time to make it—without scanting working hours."

"It's wicked—or worse—spendin' money before you get it," Lillian protested. Lee made a face at her, and ran away. As she pattered down the walk, and hopped into the shabby car, Lillian said bitterly to the air: "She's set on tryin' to catch the Fairleigh fellow. As if a poor girl had any chance against an heiress."

Miss Suzanne Jones, heiress, would gladly have agreed with Lillian, except that facts forbade. Facts male and female—to be exact, the Fairleigh fellow, and Miss Lee Barton—her car had just obstinately given up the ghost, and he was joyously handing her into his roadster. Lewden's, the exclusive shop, was holding a sale—to last three days only—and everybody, old or young, was flocking to it. Suzanne Jones with the Elgin girls arrived in time to see Fairleigh holding Lee's hand, and to hear him say: "Never mind about the car—I'll attend to that."

The Elgins giggled in spite of themselves at Miss Suzanne's sniff. Amazed they met Lee dashing out of the shop, clutching a fine rolled parcel, crying breathlessly: "Don't stop me—if you love me."

"Humph! Must a-made up her mind easy," Miss Suzanne said acidly.

"Had to, I reckon," Molly Elgin countered. "You know she works at the lunchroom mornings—half-past ten to one."

"Why no—I hadn't heard," Miss Suzanne returned. "The idea of Tim Fairleigh 'scortin' round a waiter-girl—"

"Who happens to be a lady—with money at interest," Beck Elgin broke in wickedly.

A woman, twenty-five, sallow shrewish, rich, lone and eager to be married, has excuse for many things. Especially if there is an added accent of jealousy. Well, as Miss Suzanne loved her money, she was by way of loving Tim Fairleigh a good bit better.

When the community of Berryhill advanced ambitiously to the commission form of government, Tim Fairleigh took over the job zestfully indeed—and was rather more than making good. Sleepy Berryhill waked magically—Lewden's emporium was the newest thing—and the best.

Miss Suzanne insisted upon speaking with Mr. Lewden apart. Lewden nodded often, smiling steadfastly as he listened. But when she went away, he whistled—soundlessly—she had certainly set him a risky task. Then days later, the town all but forgot the Elgin party due in two days more, being too mazed and dazed by a newer happening.

Lee Barton had been summoned to appear before the commissioner, to answer Lewden's sworn charge of obtaining merchandise under false pretenses. Rare merchandise—running altogether to a value of thirty-four dollars—she had pledged payment within a week—now that she was four days a defaulter, her creditor appealed to the worshipful commissioner to save him from loss.

Lee felt all eyes in the packed courtroom burning upon her, but held her head high, admitting everything. She had bought the goods, had given the pledge—had broken it through finding better use for the money. Everybody gasped there—save the commissioner. "What was that use?" he demanded. Lee merely smiled. She had asked Lewden to wait till she got her pay from the lunchroom. Then out of the crush sprang a wiry fellow, roughly clad, who darted in front of her saying: "Lemme tell ye, Timmy—she never will. I owed her interest money—that she counted on payin' with—I tried to see her, ter find out mightn't I keep back a bit of it. Missed her in town—so she come out ter see us—got thar as we were eatin' supper—saw we had nothin' but corn hoe cake—made out not to notice it though. Had brought M'ria, my wife, things ter eat—laughed, sayin' they was samples. Never let on she knowed I'd been seekin' her—but made me go out to the kyar with her—I seen she was fit ter cry. She's seen—hanging to dry—the baby things M'ria had made outen flour sacks—and washed an' washed an' washed so's they'd be soft. Says she ter me: 'Joe—we're poor enough not ter mind helpin' one 'nother—don't you dare name intrust ter me—I give it to—that blessed baby'—then seemed like she couldn't say another word, ef I'd knowed what she was darin' I'd a-come and paid her bill twice over—in money—and outen that feller's hide."

The courtroom roared approval—Major Elgin bustled forward, money in both hands, saying as he tossed claim and costs to Lewden: "Better quit town—while the quilting is good!" then in Lee's ear: "You're sentenced to be married to Timmy Fairleigh as soon as ever somebody can get a license."

M. E. CONFERENCE

Of South Favors Enforcement of Tennessee's Blue Law.

Memphis, Tenn., May 13.—(UP.)—Tennessee's blue law fight has been carried to the conference of the Methodist Episcopal church south, here.

"Declaring that Sabbath breakers have America headed straight for God's fury and destruction," Noah Webster Cooper, the state's leading exponent of blue Sundays, in a memorial asked the conference to favor strict blue laws and to organize an extensive campaign to put them over. "As long as Sabbath breaking continues as at present we can but expect a growth of all the crimes and vices and pest and war and high taxes—the bitter fruit of making war against God," the memorial said.

The document asked that the attack be centered on Sunday newspapers, trains and mails. Next to be attacked would be theaters, base ball, pop stands, etc.

LIGHTING HISTORY TRACED BY EXPERT

Shows Development From Days of Torch.

Washington.—The history of lighting from such crude beginnings as when the Shetland Islanders made a torch-lamp by sticking a wick in the throat of the very fat stormy petrel forms the subject of an interesting manuscript just completed as the fruit of years of research by a Smithsonian scientist. The author is Dr. Walter Hough, head curator of anthropology
in the National museum, which is administered by the Smithsonian.

Doctor Hough's account reveals that animals have played a surprisingly large part in furnishing light to man.
A very fat little fish called the candle
fish is burned like the stormy petrel
by the Indians of the Northwest coast of America. In the tropics of America the natives used to build cages to hold the great light-bearing beetle or firefly for illuminating purposes.

Largest Contributors.

But whales and seals have made the largest contribution, of course, in supplying lamp fuel. Up to the discovery of petroleum in quantities in 1859, they provided the major portion of the world's lamp oil. "with the result," as Doctor Hough puts it, "that the lamp was rather a device for increasing Christian fortitude than a dependable producer of light."

Doctor Hough has devoted years to the collecting and study of artificial lighting objects until the collection
now in the National museum is probably without a peer. Henry Ford has made a hobby of the collecting of such objects and he now has a very excellent series of specimens.

The revolutionizing factor in illumination Doctor Hough finds to be the solution of the problem of draft for lamps by a Swiss engineer named Argand in the year 1782. George Washington had some of the Argand lamps at Mount Vernon. These are now in the National museum historical collections.

The Torch.

"The torch," says Doctor Hough, "is associated with war, destruction, pomp and barbaric festivities. The candle symbolizes peace, domesticity
and contemplation of religious things.
The lamp in turn stands for wisdom,
furnishing feeble light to aid the keen eyes of philosophers and poets. In modern times the torch becomes a pictograph of the adventurings of science into new fields of research, the lamp stands for education, while the candle is sidetracked to the service of luxury and ritualism."

Doctor Hough is also an authority on heating and on the broader subject of fire. He has prepared a monograph on fire with a fascinating body of folk lore and mythology, which now awaits a publisher. In a paper on heating he gives first credit to Benjamin Franklin for the adaptation of the stove to coal. "Franklin," he says, "saw that the problem was to provide an efficient draft and proceeded to work it out on scientific lines in 1742 for wood-burning stoves and 40
years later for coal stoves."

Monte Carlo Reforms Favored by Prince

Monte Carlo.—A campaign is on to clean up Monte Carlo.

A new weekly newspaper, Tout Va,
meaning "Everything Goes," says Sir Basil Zaharoff, one of the richest men in Europe, and Paris bankers are the actual rulers of the little principality of Monaco.

"Blow the Casino into the sea and Monaco would be a better place for all," is a remark frequently heard, even among business men, although the receipts from the Casino go to pay the entire taxes of the principality.

Tout Va declares Monte Carlo politics the worst in the world. It is charged that the Casino special police are able to rule despotically in Monaco.

The Casino, headed by Director General Vendenpush, has aroused resentment because of its efforts to constitute the Casino the center of all Monte Carlo amusements.

Democrats seeking to change the system of control of the Casino have the support of the prince. Without curtailing gambling, which the people
do not consider bad for the country,
the National Democrats favor a system of civil service appointments to the lucrative Casino positions.

Toss of Coin Settles Case in Detroit Court

Detroit, Mich.—The flip of a coin between attorneys for plaintiff and defendant in a case appealed from justice court and heard before Judge Ira W. Jayne resulted in a judgment for $175 for the plaintiff who had been only granted $25 in the lower court.

Levison & Co. sued in justice court for $250 from Labadie Bros. of Wyandotte for plaster delivered to them. Labadie Bros. claim the plaster was worthless and refused to pay.
The plaintiff received a judgment of $25 and appealed to Circuit court.

Judge Jayne advised the attorneys to effect a compromise and Sidney A.
Jacobs, for the plaintiff, asked for $200, and Leo Cabalan, defense attorney, said his client would settle for $150.

The two attorneys stepped outside the courtroom and flipped a coin to determine whether Labadie Bros.
would pay $150 or $175.

be probably today by private oper-

three alleged principals in Chicago

hearing was continued until May 28, with individual bonds fixed at $10,000.The charges were based upon al-

x x x x x x x xNext week the Hartman Stock company will turn again to the lighter form of summer amusement and in
"Judy Drops In" will offer a romantic comedy which is laid in Greenwich Village. It concerns a Cinderella of the Latin quarter with four guardians and is said to provoke more continuous laughter than any farce of recent years. "Judy" differs from the ordinary run of farces in that it contains not only the requisite number of mirth provoking situations and funny lines, but also a charming romantic love story as well. As one New York critic phrased it — "It makes the dimples to catch the tears."Mark Swan, the author, is often referred to as the veteran farce writer and the New York production of
"Judy Drops In" marked the 25th successive year that a play of his had been presented on Broadway, so Mr.
Swan refers to "Judy" as his silver jubilee play.The presentation at the Hartman next week will probably be the last time this play is ever offered by any stock company as it has already been withdrawn from the list of stock releases and is at the present time being fitted to tunes and lyrics and this winter "Judy" will revisit Broadway as a musical comedy. The Hartman Stock company will be allowed to produce it next week as a compliment to their stage director, John Hayden, who directed the original New York production.A stock season is interesting to watch from the standpoint of the way in which it offers opportunities to the members of the cast. The big parts swing in a circle. You may remember that it was the third week before Georgio Neese and John Lott came into their own. In next week's play, Martha Lee Manners gets her big chance in a role that suits her down to the ground.Miss Neese will be seen in a totally different part and so will Miss Ford, Donn Cook, Neil McFee, John Lott
and Forrest Orr will play the four residents of the American artists quarter, next week will be your chance to see how they really live. You can imagine the fun to be extracted from the situations when the four men are occupying one room—cooking their own meals on a two-burner gas stove,
and Judy drops in on them and is promptly adopted by the quartet. All four of the boys fall in love with her and to tell any more would spoil your fun. So make your reservation now because "Judy" will be very popular in Columbus next week.Matinees Tuesday, Thursday and

There is tremendous power wrapped

It could hardly be called that.

Yet, many a time it has been said that it is a crime to let shoes go too long belong additional service. This is almost crim-

AMUSEMENTS

"Zander the Great," the famous stage play adapted for the screen by Frances Marion and starring Marion Davies, will be shown at the Met theater beginning Monday and continue for two days. Perhaps never in her career has Miss Davies been so admirably cast as in the role of "Mamie," the demure, whimsical yet humorous heroine of "Zander the Great."

A different angle and a new twist has been given the play by the introduction of several comedy characters, who divide the picture equally into two portions—one devoted exclusively to the comedy element and the other to an epic drama of the far west.

The quick moving plot is punctuated with the swifter moving action of cowboys, bandits and rum-runners who engage in a tremendous battle in the sweeping spaces of the Mojave desert.

This provides the western sequence which is enacted against the towering walls of high mountains and on the broad expanse of desert, with a sandstorm of blinding intensity.

With Holbrook Blinn, Harri Ford, Hobart Bosworth, Harry Myers, Harry Watson, Jr. Richard.

As Gamblers See It

Felix Isman tells an amusing story of the psychology of gamblers. Two men went to a gambling house and played for some hours. When they left, one berated the other: "Why didn't you do as I told you? You wouldn't have lost. 'But,' said the other, 'you lost just as much as I did.' 'Yes, I did, but mine lasted longer than yours.'—The Outlook.

WHERE WOULD I FIND THE TWENTY
FIVE THOUSAN.

"How was I to know that he going to shoot out of that road? Right in front of my radiator. Never soiled his horn. Said he did; but he liar.

"And after I took him to the pital and told 'em to spare no expense in making him comfortable, he turns and sues me. Asks $25,000. He's three witnesses (all of 'em in the car with him) to swear I was going sixty miles an hour.

"Offers to settle out of court for $10,000. Lawyer says I might do worse. Says those three witnesses are bad. Three men's word against mine. Says I ought to have found some myself. Listens nice—but there weren't any to find.

"Think I'll hand him over $10,000 without a fight?

"But why didn't I buy that insurance that fellow was trying to sell me? Told him I'd driven ten years without an accident and didn't see why I should begin now. He did say something about a lot of fool drivers on the road. Ought to have believed him. But I didn't think they made 'em as dumb and crooked as that fellow.

"What did he say insurance cost? Less than a hundred, I know. Lost ten times that amount already in sale just worrying about this. Funny how a thing like this upsets a fellow. What's the use of working if you've got to hand over everything you've made to some fool who doesn't know how to drive a car?

"Wonder what the jury will give him? Seen some pretty big awards lately in the newspapers. Bigger than $25,000, some of 'em. Never can tell what a jury will do. $25,000 (of my money) wouldn't seem much to them.

"Where would I find the twenty-five? Wish that insurance company were handling the case for me. Wonder if I hadn't better tell my lawyer if he can settle for $7,500, to go ahead and do it. Know a hundred better uses for $7,500. Hate to take chances on a jury, tho.

"Taught me a lesson. Won't catch me driving a car again unless it's fully insured. Lemme see, that insurance man's telephone number was 961 or 584, guess I better call him now."

SILVER MEDAL
CONTEST HELD
U. B. CHURCH

Marcella Hampshire First,
Mable Dumm Second and Garnet Buskirk Third.

In the County Peace Declamation contest held at the Circleville United Brethren church Friday evening, Miss Marcella Hampshire representing Morris chapel U. B. church and a student in Pickaway township high school won first honors and a beautiful silver medal.

Miss Mabel Dumm representing Emmett chapel, and also a student in Pickaway high school won second honors with Miss Garnet Buskirk, of Circleville high, representing the Methodist Episcopal church, of Circleville, winning third place.

The contestants all did remarkably well and deserve to be congratulated for their splendid efforts.

Miss Hampshire will now represent the county in the Congressional district contest, and if successful, there will receive a gold medal and will enter the state contest where prizes aggregating several hundred dollars and college scholarships are offered. Here's hoping that Pickaway county may win this distinguished honor.

Everybody, boost Miss Hampshire. The judges were Rev. Emil Toensmeier, C. A. Weldon, attorney, and A. A. White, principal of the Franklin street school.

Leg Bands on Birds

Hunters shooting game birds during the hunting season are requested by the United States biological survey to examine all birds carefully for leg bands at the time they are shot. It will greatly aid the investigation being made by means of banded birds if bands are returned to the survey with accurate particulars regarding the exact spot where the birds were found, and any other pertinent information.—Pathfinder Magazine.

POULTRY AND HOG EXPERT COMING.

Dr. H. F. Emick, of the Research department of the George H. Lee company, Omaha, Nebraska, will speak on the Diseases of Poultry and Swine, Their Cause, Treatment and Prevention, May 18, at 2 o'clock at Cloverdell Poultry farm.

He will also conduct a Post-mortem demonstration clinic, teaching all who attend to easily recognize the common ailments of poultry and swine. This demonstration is of great value to every poultry and hog raiser, because the successful treatment of any trouble depends upon an accurate diagnosis and prompt action. Thousands of dollars are lost by farmers every year because of their inability to recognize trouble until it is well started when, if taken in time, loss could have been prevented. Hear this expert and be prepared. You may not be having any losses now, but the time will surely come when the information gained will pay big dividends.

Everyone who has been losing any chickens or pigs, or who has chickens or pigs that are not doing well, is urged to bring a specimen or two for examination and receive free instructions on the treatment, cause and prevention of the trouble. Urge your neighbor to do likewise. The more specimens brought in, the better the demonstration will be. There will be no admission charge, and no one will be solicited to buy anything, inasmuch as this meeting will be held purely for educational purposes with regard to the prevention of disease among poultry and swine. Come! and bring your poultry and pig troubles with you.

Enormous Annual Loss by Erosion

Soil Resources Are Being Seriously Depleted by Gullying.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Erosion of farm land causes an enormous annual loss to American farmers. While a large outlay of cash and labor is being made for soil improvement, at the same time the soil resources of the country are being seriously depleted through gullying. Owing to the large yearly rainfall and to the extensive growing of clean-cultured crops year after year in the southern states, that section suffers a disproportionate share of this loss. Gullying does considerable damage, however, in nearly all parts of the United States.

When plants and soil are unable to retain all of the rain that falls on rolling or hilly land the surplus flows over the surface to a drainage channel at the foot of the slope. If there are no draws or depressions the water travels over the surface to the foot of the slope in broad, thin sheets. Where depressions exist, however, the water is led into the depressions. It gathers from above and from the sides of the depression and forms a stream with power to wash away the soil proportional to the stream's size and velocity. If the depression is not sufficiently protected by grass or other means to prevent erosion, a gully begins to form which enlarges with each succeeding rain.

Where Gullies Start.
Natural hollows are not the only places where gullies start. They may start at any place on a slope where opportunity is afforded by artificial means for the water to collect and form a small stream. Driving a wagon down a slope when the ground is soft leaves wagon tracks that may later develop into gullies. A gully may be started by dragging a plow down a slope. Mole holes and cattle paths down a slope are common causes of gullies. One of the commonest ways to start gullies is to plow or cultivate straight up and down a slope. A dead furrow extending down a slope may rapidly develop into a deep gully.

Means employed to prevent the formation of gullies are: deep plowing, plowing under organic matter such as manure, stubble and stalks, the use of cover crops, proper crop rotations, plowing along level lines across the slope, and tile draining. The construction of terraces also reduces erosion by carrying off the surplus water slowly. Information relative to terracing may be obtained from the state agricultural colleges and from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Plan Reclamation.
In reclaiming a gully, the work should be planned so that when completed the entire gully will be reclaimed. Too often a small section of a gully is reclaimed in a way which will not fit into any later scheme for the reclamation of the whole gully. In starting work attention should be first directed to the upper end of the gully where head erosion is going on. The brush dam is cheap and easy to build and is effective in filling gullies when carefully and properly constructed. The following method is recommended for building brush dams that are at times overflowed. The bottom and sides of the gully for a distance of four to ten feet are covered with a layer of straw that will be from four to six inches deep when pressed down by the weight of the dam. The brush, with the butts pointing up-stream, is laid close together on the straw and thoroughly tramped down, the fine brush being placed at the bottom and the coarser on top. The packed brush is held in place by cross pieces nailed to fence posts set in the line of the dam across the gully. Set the posts in the ground not less than four feet deep if possible. Make the middle of the dam lower than the sides so that the water will not have a tendency to wash around the ends. Satisfactory dams can also be made of other materials, such as stones, logs, concrete, or woven wire, where brush is not available.

Plowing in and seeding is a simple though sometimes rather expensive method of reclaiming gullies. Small gullies (one to three feet deep) having no well defined drainage areas can be entirely filled. They can be first partly filled with manure, straw, corn stalks or small brush, which should be covered with a foot or more of dirt by plowing and scraping from the edge of the gullies.

Start Plowing.
The plowing should be started in the bottom of the gully or as near the bottom as possible and the dirt thrown toward the center from both sides. The plowing is done in the same way as in breaking land and should be continued a few furrows beyond the edges of the gully. To push the dirt toward the center of the gully, an ordinary road drag or steel ditcher can be used to advantage.

The freshly plowed earth over the sides and bottom of the gully affords a good seed bed for plant growth. Grasses should be sowed or trees planted to hold the soil in place and temporary dams of some material such as brush or straw should be built to catch the soil that might otherwise be washed away by heavy rains. Some grasses that can be used for this purpose are bermuda grass, orchard grass, blue grass, red top, sweet clover, and lespedeza. Every locality has certain grasses best suited to it.

INTERNATIONAL

Good Will Day Will Be Observed Sunday, May 16th.

Washington, May 14.—As a move towards abolishing war, churches will co-operate with schools throughout the world in the observance of World Goodwill Day this year. The religious forces of the United States under the leadership of the Commission on International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches have established International Goodwill Sunday to be observed annually on the Sunday nearest May 18, which is the anniversary of the meeting of the First Hague Peace Conference.

Three other great religious organizations are backing the plan. Officers of the Christian Endeavor Union, the Epworth League and the Baptist Young People's Union are calling upon their members to take part. Special exercises will be held by Sunday schools and young people's organizations throughout the country. The move for the observance of a special day in the interest of international goodwill by young people was inaugurated by the World Federation of Educational Associations.

Many colleges and universities will observe the day, among them being Boston University School of Theology, Yale, Vassar, Elmhurst and the University of Missouri.

Elephants Have Colds

Circus elephants often suffer from colds and the method of treating them is more or less difficult. However, one remedy that seems helpful at least is to make the elephant inhale boiling vinegar, which is done by half filling a bag with vinegar and hanging it over the elephant's trunk so that it has to inhale the fumes whether it wants to or not. The fumes are held to be quite beneficial.

POWER LINE
POLES DYNAMITED
BY STRIKERS

Akron, May 13.—(UP.)—The authorities will make no arrests in connection with the alleged attempt of striking N. O. P. trainmen to cripple the company's power lines by dynamiting poles supporting high tension wires, it was announced this afternoon.

A three-way inquiry of the affair was underway this afternoon but no formal charges had been filed and company officials and the sheriff's office announced none would be unless the striking employees became too unruly.

The power line, which was made the object of an attack during the night, also supplies power to rubber companies in East Akron. The line crashed to earth but did not break.

Untoward incidents, including brick-throwing, were recorded at intervals, but officials this afternoon said they were convinced the strike would soon be brought to an end.

THE OLDEST PIKE
IN THE STATE

Is Being Improved By the State Highway Department.

The Jackson pike which passes through Ohio on the west side of the Scioto river, from Kentucky to the Lakes, and said to be one of the oldest roadways in the State, has been taken over by the State Highway Department which has a large force of men at work widening and straightening the old roadway between the South Bloomfield pike and Yellow Bud.

The object of improving this old roadway is to furnish motorists a detour when the "Scioto Trail" is being improved with brick through this county.

Wraps and Gowns
for Evening Wear

Designs Are Complicated by Vogue of Popular Softly
Draped Frocks.

The period gown, the continued popularity of crinolined and bouffant skirts, and tulle dancing frocks of many frills, have complicated the problem of designing an evening wrap. notes a fashion authority in the New York Times. This is very much to the advantage of the woman who goes in for the softly draped or fluffy sort of dress. The latest wraps for evening and for elaborate afternoon are built on lines the absolute reverse of last season's models that were designed to slip over a one-piece, straight-line gown of the most classic simplicity. Coming away from that ideal through all the evolutions of circulars, godets and flares, wraps have corresponded in type, and the latest conceptions are interesting in the extreme.

There is in them no suggestion of earlier fashions which were complicated and overornate, but a simplicity that is naive, graceful, stylish and more picturesque than the wraps worn with evening toilettes for winter. Coats are still considered smart, many coming from almost all of the important houses at Paris and others from American designers that are occasion for sincere pride. All of these coats are plain, without being in the least stiff, and most are cut upon conventional lines, with little variation or novelty of detail.

Cut Like Street Coat.

An evening coat done with success by Lanvin is cut like a tailored street coat with a simple little cravat scarf to tie at the neck and hang over one shoulder. The sleeves are long and fairly tight and the only trimming on the wrap is a ten-inch band of summer ermine sewed about the bottom which is given a flare at each side by an inverted plait the depth of the knee. The material of this striking garment is a metal tissue brocade in bright oriental colors, red, blue, green, in a large domino pattern arranged in horizontal stripes. The lining is of Chinese blue crepe de chine.

In striking contrast to this coat is one of sund-colored crepe Elizabeth, lined for warmth with kasha cloth in the same shade. There are no shoulder seams, the sleeves being in one piece with the coat, rather wide and straight at the hand, and all about the edge is a band of red fox. A Chinese coat model is made of chiffon brocade velvet, the background of soft beige, the embossed pattern of conventional flowers in soft shades of red. Antelope is used to trim the collar and cuffs and the coat is lined with a soft shade of Chinese red.

Kit fox is exceedingly fashionable for coat trimmings, its tones of ivory, beige and russet blending charmingly with the new spring shades. A novelty in the form of the much-discussed quilted coat is made of crepe in pastel green; the pattern formed of stitching is of scattered flowers conventionalized. Kit fox is used to finish the neck and sleeves and beige crepe printed in softly tinted flowers of large design. That gorgeous shade of orange fox called red is used to trim a wrap cut like the coat of a Chinese mandarin in pale crepe a shade between orange and lemon. The American designer of this wrap gold with chartreuse shot with gold color. An evening wrap of gentle elegance is of silver lame and pearl gray taffeta, lined with white crepe brocade with large silver flowers. The collar and wide cuffs are bordered with a band of light gray fox. Black, Black and White.

A lot of black, and black and white, is being shown by Parisian creators. The sudden craze for black, which is the despair of importers and manufacturers, has made demand for black wraps for the ensembles and gowns of black chiffon and tulle. These are designed in cape models of different types to give greater width. Among the few exceptions shown is a slightly flaring coat of black flannel, the entire surface of which is embroidered in a Chinese pattern of scenery and figures done in fine white floss. The coat is lined with white Chinese crepe, with a huge silver flower embroidered over an inside pocket, and the collar and cuffs are finished with a wide band of white fox fur.

Another coat wrap is made of black chiffon velvet, lined with black chiffon embroidered with small gilt flowers. Gold lace is introduced as panel godets at the sides, and in the flaring flounce cuffs of the sleeves. An achievement in evening wraps received from Paris is of black taffeta—a wide cape, not circular, but slurred on the shoulders and again at the hip to form a flounce below. This is held in at the lower edge by a band of white fox, with a plain fold of taffeta showing several inches beneath. A large collar is also made of the white fox.

Fine plaiting is seen in some of the evening wraps of Parisian authorship with particularly happy effect in crepe and chiffon. A lovely cape which is part of an ensemble has been designed by a New York modiste of delphinium blue chiffon. The dance frock is cut with circular insets at the hips, giving a wide flare and swing to the skirt. At spaces about the bottom are sewed little tufts of fine ostrich set on with blue glass beads, the same trimming being used on the decollete bodice, all over a lining of pale rose chiffon. A wide scarf of the chiffon, with ends trimmed with the ostrich, lined with the rose chiffon, is caught in a loop at the back of the neck and finished with a long tassel of blue and silver beads and fringe.

The "Square" Cape.

The new departure in evening wraps is a cape which arrived with the title of "square." It is really not a square at all, but a long, wide piece of material, two edges of which are caught together in the middle to form a loop. A long tassel is added at the neck, one at the point of the loop and one at each corner. One of these extremely simple but picturesque capes is made by an American designer in green and gold metal brocade.

Another is of a lovely shade of hydrangea pink crepe Elizabeth, lined with chiffon several shades deeper. The possibilities for decorative effect, utility and chic in these cape "squares" are almost without number. The new chiffon and velvet brocades, soft as rose petals and beautifully tinted, the Chinese crepe and silk so much in vogue, the metal tissues and brocaded taffetas and varieties of crepe are all beautifully adapted.

Some of the handsomest scarf capes and "squares" are made of two fabrics—taffeta and chiffon, metal brocade and crepe, or taffeta and the finer crepes lined with chiffon. A pretty party wrap for a young woman is of white crepe Elizabeth on fine plaits that are drawn in very close at the collar. A band of white taffeta is added to the front edges of the cape and forms a narrow scarf with fringed ends to be wound around the neck and hang with one end over each shoulder. A large assortment of beaded gowns—technically known as "robes"—and tunics is presented by almost every dress shop. They are said to be "flooded" the market, but they are far from being a drug, for beaded and palmetted things were never more popular. The latest styles in these are done in excellent taste, lighter and more lacy than the heavily beaded gowns of winter, and are dyed in many pretty and delicate shades.

Wrap of Beige Roma Lavishly Trimmed With Bands of Mink.

suggested several accompaniments—a frock of pale lemon yellow with garniture of flowers, a fan of majestic plumes, shoes, chiffon stockings and vanity bag all reflecting the colors one sees in a bed of marigolds.

Greens are having a tremendous vogue, every shade and quality being used in the wraps that will be worn over crepe and chiffon gowns at evening affairs during the spring and summer. Taffeta is, of course, all the rage for wraps, capes and coats as well as for frocks, though it requires a special treatment to give it a "dressy" appearance. A cape which has something of the dolman design is made of sheet metal brocade in pale

GRADUATION CREDITS FOR WORK IN CAMP

Announcement has been made th t Colonel A. M. Shipp, professor of military science at Ohio State university, that students in the Reserve Officers' Training corps who attend the citizens' military training camps
this summer will be granted two quarter credit hours toward graduation from the university.

Decision to allow university credit for C. M. T. C. work was made by President George W. Rightmire at suggestion of Captain Paul A. Barry R. O. T. C. adjutant. It is intended that C. M. T. C. training will supplant the former basic camp of the R. O. T.
C., which was discontinued by the war department several years ago.

According to the announcement,
students attending a C. M. T. camp for 30 days will be given two-thirds as much credit as they would receive for a whole year of R. O. T. C. work.
It is believed that Ohio State is the first university in the country to make this concession. Ohio high school's have allowed a one-fourth unit credit for each month of C. M. T. C. work for the past two years.

PRINTER USES GOLDEN RULE

Sharing of Profits Builds Business, He Says.

Seattle, Wash.—The Golden Rule in a printing establishment may be comparatively new, but Clint W. Lee, Seattle specialty printer, believes he has proved it a success in the ten years he has operated under this system.

Twenty-four years ago, Lee started business on a small scale, assisted by a printer and a $8-a-week boy. Ten years ago he first began to share his profits with his son and with his press-man.

Since then he has gradually developed his co-operative plan, and last year distributed $4,700 in profits
among the thirty-five men and women on his pay roll. Moreover, he has made money.

The Christian printer, as Lee is known in Seattle, said he has no cut and dried plan which can be applied in any business. His policy is the result of year to year experiment in his own plant. He has seen fit to divide 30 per cent of the net income of the plant with his employees besides paying union wages or better and giving a week's vacation yearly with pay.
His minimum wage for experienced girls is $20 a week and only two receive so little as that.

Group life insurance on the employees is paid for entirely by the company and one-third of the cost of health and accident insurance. Every employee is given an opportunity to buy stock in the concern on easy terms.

One of the new human element features of Lee's policy is a 20-minute
chapel service every Monday morning on the company's time. Lee, who was elected chaplain, starts the exercises
at eight o'clock with a prayer.

Mostly we get what we deserve,
and its unfortunate to get something we do not deserve. Most of the zest of life comes from the many surprises
that come to us as we go along. Humdrum is deadly.
